Cleaver-Brooks Representative Association Elects President

Eddie Lunn Named to Head International Association

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (October 29, 2004) – Eddie Lunn, Jr., President and CEO of Boiler Supply Company, Inc., headquartered in Nashville, Tenn., was elected president of the Cleaver-Brooks Representative Association (CBRA <http://www.cbreps.com/>), at their 8th Annual Meeting in Orlando, Florida.

“I am excited to have Eddie Lunn take over as the president of CBRA. I have worked with Eddie for a long time, and have seen him successfully manage and grow his company bringing solid business strategies, clear communication and strong people skills to his work.,” said Welch Goggins, vice president of North American Sales, Cleaver-Brooks, a division of Aqua-Chem. “I look forward to watching Eddie and the new board as they lead CBRA in the year to come.”

CBRA is an industry first – an alliance of sales and service organizations representing the world’s premier manufacturer of boiler room equipment; Cleaver-Brooks. Our organization consists of 47 independently owned and operated industry-leading companies in 89 locations throughout the United States and Canada. The combined experience and expertise of CBRA members allows them to provide customers with the highest quality products, parts, service and technical support in the boiler industry.

Lunn has previously served as founding executive board member, charter secretary, treasurer and vice president on the CBRA board. He is currently the chairman of the Tennessee Board of Boiler Rules, Tennessee Department of Labor and Workforce Development, where he has served since January of 1981.
