Eddie Lunn, III Named President of Boiler Supply Company

Third Generation Lunn to Lead Company

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (April 1, 2007) – Eddie Lunn, III, grandson of Boiler Supply Company founder Eddie Lunn, Sr. and son of current president Eddie Lunn, Jr., has been named the third President of Boiler Supply Company, Inc., a company that opened its doors for business in 1942 and is headquartered in Nashville, Tenn.

“It is overwhelming to think that we are ready for a third generation “Lunn” to take over as the president of Boiler Supply Company,” said Eddie Lunn, Jr., current Boiler Supply president and CEO of since 1978. “It is an overwhelming honor to watch your son grow into a strong man with a vision for the future. I am excited to see what he brings to this company as the President.”

Eddie Lunn, III graduated from Baylor University in 1998 with a Bachelor of Business Administration degree in Finance and Marketing. After graduation, Lunn joined Shaw Industries as a Territory Manager based out of Houston, Texas. He moved to Nashville in 2000 to join his father and learn the ropes of the family business. Lunn spent two years in Sales, as well as a on-going management training with key executives. In 2002, Lunn was promoted to his current position as Operations and Finance Manager.

“The opportunity before us has never been greater and I am excited about the future direction of Boiler Supply Company. Through the foresight of my father we are positioned for the greatest growth opportunity more than any time in our history, said Eddie Lunn, III, incoming president of Boiler Supply Company. “Over the next three years we are going to focus on being the most professional and complete power plant company.”
